

2014 SIPP - The New Phoenix

Design, Contents, and Timeline

Jason Fields

SIPP Survey Director

U.S. Census Bureau

March 6, 2014

Kick-off to the CNSTAT SIPP Evaluation Panel

Keck Center – National Academy of Science

Outline

- Background and status
- Content and design – What's still here? – Dependent data...
- Demonstration of specific areas in the SIPP Instrument
- Innovation in processing
- Timeline for major milestones and data releases
- Evaluation – (Graton)

Notes on the New Design

Scope

- Similar to SIPP
- Broader than core / includes key topical module content in each wave

Better integration of concepts

- EHC generates integrated reporting across domains
- Topics previously implemented as add-on modules now integrated
- Facilitate 'hooks' to enable supplements for additional content

Increased efficiency in processing and producing data products

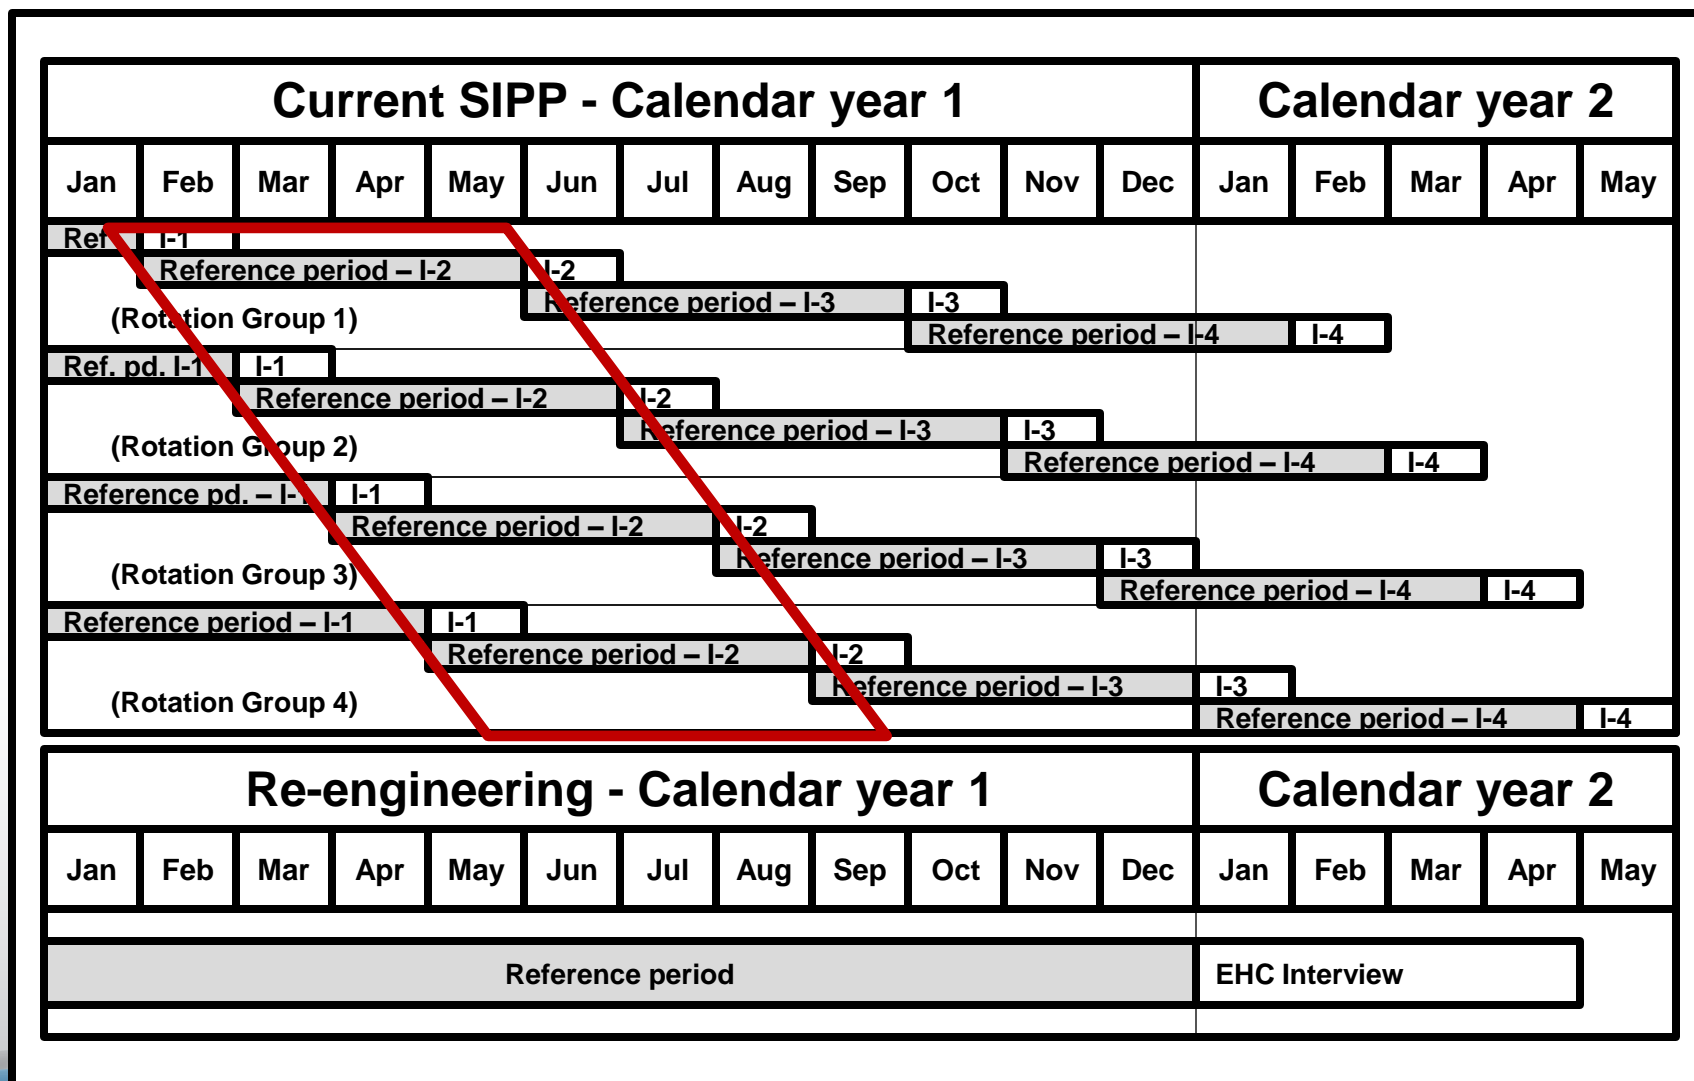

Flexibility in administration (dynamic interview month and reference period)

Dependent data incorporation into EHC instrument

Reduced cost and burden through annual administration

Improve management through realigned structure and improved monitoring using all available tools – especially paradata

SIPP Design Change - Example

(For example, any births or deaths in your family? Divorces or marriages? A vacation? An accident or an illness? Changes in your employment? A residence change? Or anything else that was unusual or memorable?)

•If necessary, probe especially for events that happened early in the year.

Landmarks

In this section of the interview we are interested in your income and other circumstances, since January 1st of 2010. Sometimes, it's easier for people to remember dates from the past if they think about other important events in their lives, or what we call 'memory anchors.'
