

INTELLIGENCE SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY EXPERTS GROUP

What is ISTEg? The Intelligence Science and Technology Experts Group (ISTEG) is a diverse group of more than 500 experts from across the branches of science, engineering, and medicine who have volunteered to provide individual quick-response technical advice to ODNI and other federal intelligence agencies.

How does it work? Intelligence agencies submit questions to ODNI which sends them to National Academies staff for submission to ISTEg volunteers. The volunteers' individual responses are collected, collated, and returned verbatim to the sponsor within a few weeks as independent, individually-attributed answers.

The ISTEg is organized by the Intelligence Community Studies Board (ICSB) of the National Academies. Learn more about the ICSB at nas.edu/icsb. For questions regarding ISTEg, contact us at ISTEG@nas.edu.
