Biography

Derek Slater is a Senior Policy Analyst on Google's public policy team. He supports the company's advocacy efforts on copyright and telecom policy around the world.

Derek has been writing about digital media since he bought a Diamond Rio PMP300 MP3 player as a teenager. His work has focused on recommendation engines' impact on consumer behavior and how public policy can support emerging media business models, and it has been discussed in the Washington Post and the Boston Globe.

In 2009, he helped Vint Cerf and a group of network researchers launch Measurement Lab, an open platform for Internet measurement tools.
